The National Audubon Society

A brief history...

The National Audubon Society was founded in 1886 by George Bird Grinnell in memory of naturalist and artist John James Audubon. Audubon documented America's 1065 birds for his book Birds of America. Though the society's focus is the preservation and study of bird species, it now protects animals and their habitats. With over 600,000 members and 500 chapters in America, the society lobbies for passage of important environmental policies (such as, the Endangered Species and Clean Air acts). --(excerpt from learningtogive.org)

St. Paul Audubon Society

Founded in 1945, the St. Paul Audubon Society seeks to make the world a better place for birds. They invite various speakers to their monthly meetings, provide ample educational oppotunities, and organize opportunities for conservation. They meet on the second Thursday of each month at the Fairview Community Center in Roseville, MN.
